GARRISON'S ARMY PLAN SECRET FOR PRESENT

Secretary Says It Could Be Put Quickly Into Shape If Needed

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, June 9.—Secretary Garrison said today that although he is almost daily conference with army officers over the general plan for the reorganization of the army, he does not propose to make public his recommendations on the subject until congress convenes. Meanwhile careful study is being given to every proposal to increase the efficiency of the country's land forces.

In response to an inquiry Mr. Garrison said that if an extraordinary session of congress were called, the plan could be rapidly filled in and put in shape for immediate presentation to that body.

ANOTHER STRONGHOLD IN GALICIA CAPTURED BY INVADING GERMANS

The attack since Friday, says a dispatch from Mythen. The attack was begun in the morning by a general bombardment of the enemy's positions with the aid of the fleet. A fierce struggle all along the line followed and the fighting continued.

A squadron is protecting the landing of fresh troops near Sedul Hair while the rest of the fleet closely surrounds the inner forts. The allied aeroplanes are continually flying over the peninsula discovering enemy positions and directing the fire of the fleet and batteries placed before the beach. Prisoners state that the Turks expected reinforcements from Constantinople yesterday.

Steamer Lady Salisbury Sunk by a Submarine

(By Associated Press.)
LONDON, June 9.—The British steamer Lady Salisbury was torpedoed by a German submarine this morning and sent to the bottom.

Germans Meet Italians on Battlefield for First Time

(By Associated Press.)
ROME, June 9.—Via Paris, June 9.—German troops were encountered by the Italians for the first time in the fighting at Lavarone, according to information received here. The result of the encounter is unknown.

Allied Transport Sunk By Turkish Shell Fire

(By Associated Press.)
CONSTANTINOPLE, June 9.—(Via London, June 9.)—An official statement issued today at the Turkish war office says: The Dardanelles front there was artillery fighting Tuesday. Fire broke out on an enemy transport struck by our shells. The vessel listed and sank. Another transport hastily left its anchorage.

Russians Claim Capture of 2,000 German Prisoners

(By Associated Press.)
MOSCOW, June 9.—(Via London, June 9.)—The official Russian statement issued here today says: In the Shavli district, province of Kovno, the enemy received reinforcements, changed his front and opened an aggressive attack in the direction of Dnieper. On Monday our troops had left the battle and occupied positions in front of Shavli.

On the lower Dnieper our advance has been satisfactory. On the left bank of the Vistula, north of Hava, the Germans, taking advantage of a favorable wind, attempted to make use of poisonous gases. In Galicia there has been stubborn fighting on the left bank of the Wladawa river. On June 6 the enemy succeeded in forcing back our troops, but the Russian counter attack resulted in capturing 2,000 prisoners within twenty-four hours.

On the Dnieper front there was fighting June 6 and 7. Between the Rivers Dniestr and Lomwa the attacks on the Russians' right from the German side were without result. In this fighting the Russians at Zhdachan captured 300 prisoners, six of whom were officers, and two machine guns.

On the left bank of the Dnieper the enemy has increased his forces at Zhuravka and they now extend from the town to the railroad. On the right bank of the Dnieper the Germans fell into a trap near Slawa. Two hundred of them were killed in a bayonet charge and several prisoners were taken. Attacks by the enemy between Slawa and the Lomwa have been repelled.

Spain Puts Censorship on Military and Naval News

(By Associated Press.)
PARIS, June 9.—The Spanish government called a meeting of newspaper editors yesterday and requested them to abstain from publishing anything that might compromise the military and naval measures, says a Havas telegram from Madrid. Establishment of a censorship was offered as the alternative for failure to comply with this request.

An appeal was made by the government to newspapers last Sunday to refrain from discussion of the war, as it was feared controversies might arise which would interfere with the maintenance of neutrality.

Italians Forming Line for Great Battle in Austria

(By Associated Press.)
LONDON, June 9.—From Rome to the head of the Gulf of Trieste the forces of Italy are consolidating their positions along the river Isonzo, and in a week or perhaps sooner the flat sars battle line that front should be fought. The clashes up to the present time have been of a preliminary character, but now that the Italians not only command the river crossings from the west bank, but at several points have thrown troops to the eastern bank of the Isonzo, conflict of first rate tactical importance, in the opinion of British observers, is inevitable.

In the eastern sector the Russians are fighting desperately to stem the Austro-German advance in the direction of Lemberg. While some sections of the British press maintain that the Teutonic campaign has lost its impetus, the more general feeling is that unless the Russians succeed in developing a counter offensive on a colossal scale the entire Gallic situation will remain unfavorable to the Russian arms and more than likely to the abandonment of Lemberg, capital of the crown land of Galicia.

In the western theater the slow but steady French gains predominate the situation. In the center of the line, play the interest. The line is hot. Should this occur, even for an instant, the next day is lost. This line play has developed with the Teutonic line, and the long play is maintained by information, during the afternoon, which is not direct, the next day is denied their help.

French Claim Small Gains Over Germans

All former members of the Guard are urged to telephone or write Frank R. Logan, Treas. building, secretary, and be enrolled in the society.

Province of Bukovina Cut Off in Russian

(By Associated Press.)
COLOGNE, June 9.—(Via Paris, June 9.)—A dispatch from Austrian headquarters on the eastern front says the Russian army in Bukovina, which had been strengthened by portions of the detachments already defeated at Kalusz, eastern Galicia, has been fully cut off from the middle Galician forces of the Russians and is being driven back eastward.

The victorious Austro-German forces from Kalusz are only a few miles from Stanislaw. General Italian's left wing is prosecuting a violent offensive. The advance of General Linsingen, Sarnay and Italian is proceeding by forced marches.

Another Galician Town Is Captured by the Austrians

(By Associated Press.)
BERLIN, June 9.—(Via London, June 9.)—The Galician town of Stanislaw has been captured by the Austrians, according to the official statement issued by the German army headquarters today. Stanislaw is seventy-five miles southeast of Lemberg, the Galician capital.

Army headquarters today gave out the following: "Western theater: Enemy forces commencing an attack yesterday afternoon on the eastern slope of the Toretz mountain, driven off by our troops. An enemy attack today on the eastern slope of the same hills failed. The last group of houses in the village of Noville was left in possession of the enemy during the night."

"East of Neuville we defeated repeated French attacks with heavy losses to the enemy."

"East of Heuberg a battle again is raging after an unsuccessful French attack."

"An enemy attack in the forest of Le Preux was repulsed with sanguinary losses. Fighting continues for a small part of the other trenches."

"The eastern bank of the Windau in Kibitz, northeast of Karachan, has been captured by us."

"Attacking forces are approaching the town of Shavli (in Kovno) from the southwest."

"On the Dnieper the enemy's northern wing has been driven back in a southerly direction. By an encircling attack our foremost line has reached the highway of Betigol-Allegie."

"South of the Niemen river, the Russians retreated in the direction of Kovno after stubborn fights at Bemowasow and Kozelsk. Three hundred prisoners and 200 machine guns were captured. During the pursuit which followed we gained the fortified position facing Kovno on the high road between Mgrin and Kovno."

"Southeastern theater: East of Prebny the situation remains unchanged. Northeast of Zuzawa troops under General Linsingen brought the Russian counter attack to a standstill. Further to the south fighting is in progress for possession of the hills to the east of Kalusz and west of Jozow."

"Stanislaw already is in our possession. We took 4,500 men prisoners and captured thirteen machine guns."

BOARD TO HEAR CHARGES

AGAINST CHIEF LANFORD

Beavers Ordered to Bring Formal Charges Against Detective Head

In bringing to the attention of the police board Tuesday night the complaint of station Sergeant S. J. Roberts that Detective Chief Newport Lanford cursed him over the telephone a few days ago, Chief Beavers did not submit the complaint in the form of a charge of unbecoming conduct against Lanford, but simply filed with the board the letter of Roberts written to him (Beavers) and the letter of Lanford denying the complaint.

The board refused to take cognizance of the matter in this form and passed a resolution ordering Chief Beavers to bring Roberts' complaint in the shape of a formal charge against Lanford, so that the board could try the issue in the regular way. In the discussion leading up to the adoption of this resolution several members of the board severely criticized the chief for handling the Roberts-Lanford matter in the way he did. They declared the fact that Lanford is chief of detectives should have deterred Chief Beavers from giving Roberts' complaint the status of a formal charge.

The board likewise refused to take cognizance of the report of the committee which has been probing the department several weeks, for the reason that the report was not accompanied by a stenographic report of the testimony of all witnesses heard by the committee.

The board adjourned to a special meeting next Tuesday night and directed the committee to have the stenographic report ready by that time, and also directed Chief Beavers to bring formal charges against Lanford at that meeting.

The probe committee, as exclusively predicted in The Journal Monday afternoon, severely criticized Chief Beavers and various other features of the department in their report.

The synopsis of the report follows: Chief Beavers has been governing entirely too much by "outside influence" and hereafter must set aside these influences and subordinate himself to the authority of the police board. The chief has spent too much time in his office discussing with individuals and after school certain hours in the office and devote the remainder of the time to personal inspection of the policemen on their beats. The chief should be given closer attention by the detective department.

Detective Chief Lanford is not in sufficient close touch with the police board, who is his superior, with the result that the detective and patrolmen not only fall out with the chief, but friction has grown up between them. They should be followed by the detectives and see that they work. The detective do not treat people courteously, and they steal stolen articles and do not make any report to them. The stolen articles have been recovered. A detective should be sent to investigate the case of this kind reported and there should be a follow-up report by postcard or telephone.

The patrolmen on their beats talk too much with each other. The chief should be over the telephone and otherwise, and do not observe the discipline they should. There are too many men in the force who are too old for active service.

The adult probation officer should exercise his discretion independent of the recorder and should not be allowed to collect money from persons on probation.

Stolen Jewels Found

By Detectives Hidden

In Bottom of Barrel

Hidden in the bottom of a flour barrel, Detective Doyle and Black found a fortune in diamonds, rubies and other jewels at the home of Francis Mosely, colored, all of the articles found being part of the loot of $25,000 in jewels stolen from the home of Mrs. Claude Shawmake, 606 West Peachtree street, a month ago.

The jewels recovered from the flour barrel are worth $10,000, the detectives estimate. $200 worth of the jewels was recently found by these detectives in a pawn shop. The rest of the stolen jewels are expected to be found soon. Mosely is being held on suspicion.

Flies ON Embroidery

Luncheon Set in Cornflower Design

Luncheon lines are pleasant work as well as most satisfactory articles to own when completed. The beautiful pattern shown here shows the cornflower arranged in the simplest possible manner, with a butterfly buzzing among the blossoms.

It is used for a set of doilies, and the edges are finished with buttonhole scalloping of unusually delicate design.

The petals of the flowers are worked in satin stitch. First, work one or more preliminary padding stitches from one side of the petal to the other, but within the line. Over, and at right angles to the line, work the finishing stitches lying from the center of the flower to its outer edge.

The cornflower suggests many pretty color schemes, especially when it is desired to emphasize the decorations of a dining room. This is a particularly fashionable shade this season, and in two tones of wedgewood blue will work up the cornflower design most effectively. Let the lighter shade predominate at the top and the heavier shades toward the bottom. A color between apricot and pale coral may be used for the French knots in each flower center; make these with two twists on the needle or they may look insignificant.

The stems are in crewel, or outline, stitch, keeping the thread on the right while working. The leaves are effective in sloping satin on a curved line to begin at that end which necessitates your putting the needle into the material on the outer line of the curve and out on the inner line. The stitches have to be spaced out a little more on the outer line, and it is easier to judge a regular gradation on the face of the work rather than as the needle comes up from the back; also, it is easier to keep a good, steady line, and the outer curve shows any irregularity more readily.

The embroidery pattern illustrated and described herein, together with 400 others covering all possible uses, are included in the "Innovative Embroidery Pattern Outfit" now being presented by this newspaper, as explained elsewhere in these columns. The design shown may be used not only for doilies, but for a centerpiece for an inch and a half. A line of buttonhole stitching is used to prevent the linen from fraying further. Fine damask or plain linen of good quality may be used for the centerpiece and doilies.

The butterfly offers relief and is still not too prominently placed. The butterfly suggests outline work and the edges of each wing should be done in solid work after padding with darning cotton. Work the dots either eyelets or solid stitches and fill in the wings with French knots or seed stitches.

BROXTON FIGHTS AGAINST REMOVAL OF RAILROAD

Injunction to Be Sought to Keep Ocella to Broxton Line Going

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
DOUGLASS, Ga., June 8.—The authorities in charge of the Fitzgerald, Ocella and Broxton railway, a road running from Ocella through Fitzgerald to Broxton, with its principal office in Fitzgerald, it is said, sent workmen to the Broxton end on yesterday for the purpose of taking up and removing the road entirely, and discontinuing the service to Broxton.

It is said that the citizens of Broxton objected to the work beginning on account of the fact that a great many citizens had moved to Broxton and purchased and improved property there on the faith of this railroad being kept open, and that it would cause its removal.

It seems that the citizens prevailed temporarily on the authorities not to begin work. So yesterday a representative body of Broxton citizens, headed by Judge J. W. Quincy to interpose objections to the road being taken up and removed.

It is learned today that Judge Quincy is preparing an injunction to prevent the removal of the railroad, and that the injunction will be presented to Judge George, of the Circuit Court.

The road is now leased by the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad, and is being operated by the receivers of that road. There is a question as to whether this litigation can be handled in the state courts against the original Fitzgerald, Ocella and Broxton railway, or whether it will have to go to the United States court that now has jurisdiction over the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic and the receivers.

CITY TAX COMMITTEE TO HEAR PROTESTS FRIDAY

Proposed Increases in Licenses to Be Taken Up at Special Meeting

The tax committee of council has called a special meeting for 3:30 o'clock Friday afternoon to hear the protests of citizens against the proposed increase in the amount of license for about 80 different classes of business.

The committee reported a revised tax ordinance to council last Monday, and it was sent back to the committee because a number of business men and several business organizations had objected that they were not given an opportunity of voicing their objections to the proposed increase.

Accordingly Chairman E. H. Inman has called the meeting for Friday afternoon, and urges all citizens who wish to be heard on the measure to be present.

CHARGE CONSPIRACY TO WRECK FRENCH STEAMER

Huge Bomb Alleged to Have Been Prepared by German in New Orleans

(By Associated Press.)
NEW ORLEANS, June 8.—Federal District Attorney Walter Gorton today charged the arrest of Hans Halle and spiring to ship explosives not properly marked. The charges are based on a statement the local police say Halle gave them to the effect that he prepared a huge local bomb with the intention of destroying a passenger ship of the French line leaving New York last December. The bomb, according to the police, was manufactured in a room of the hotel owned by Summers and with funds supplied partly by Summers.

Halle, Summers and two others were arrested by the police December 22, but all except Halle were released within a few days.

Halle was held on a state charge of conspiring to destroy a ship at sea, but was discharged in the lower court and yesterday the state supreme court upheld the decision. He was to be released today just before federal authorities took action.

The police say Halle claims to be a German citizen with Summers is a naturalized American of German birth and has resided here a number of years.

This was passed after a stormy session.

PARIS, June 8.—Information this afternoon publishes a dispatch from Rome saying Emperor Francis Joseph has decided to remove General Conrad von Hotendorff from the supreme command of the Austro-Hungarian forces on the Italian front because of the recent Italian offensive movements in this line.

And Dr. Brunner left for the city. Later a committee was appointed to ask him to come back and conclude his paper. The druggists are provided over this year by W. A. Piggan, of Savannah, who is the state president. Dr. Chatham, of Macon, who is a veteran of the cause, is the secretary, as he has been since the oldest member can remember.

COUPLE FREED IN PARIS ON ESPIONAGE CHARGE

Man Claims American Citizenship and Woman Was Born in British Guiana

(By Associated Press.)
PARIS, June 8.—A man giving the name of Pate who claims American citizenship, and Miss Wasson, born in Agri-cola, British Guiana, have been acquitted by the Paris permanent court martial of charges of espionage and theft. They were arrested at Malines by the Germans as suspects at the outbreak of the war, but were released and came to Paris, where they were rearrested.

The court supported the contention of the defense that since Pate was a citizen of the United States he would be impossible to obtain the evidence necessary to prove the charges against the suspects.

Now let the note proceed.

A billion bushels of wheat, it strikes us, is some balance of trade itself.

The Bases of Prosperity.

Bank clearings are now larger than at any time since the outbreak of the war, railway earnings are steadily increasing, and steel mills are operating to more than eighty per cent of their maximum capacity, as against less than forty per cent last winter.

These facts recorded by the New York Herald are the surest possible indications of the country's business stability. The increase in bank clearings shows a broadening volume of trade. The activity of the steel mills shows a far-reaching revival in basic industries. The improvement in railway earnings shows a quickening and deepening of all the currents of commerce.

Behind these hopeful evidences, stands the prospect of another autumn of bountiful harvests. The 1915 wheat crop bids fair to exceed that of last year, which was the greatest in American history. The condition of food crops generally is rich in promise. The country's natural resources are overflowing, its favorable balance of foreign trade is fast approaching a billion dollars, and doubtless by the end of the current fiscal year on June the thirtieth will overtop that stupendous sum. The bases of prosperity are broad and deep and unshakable.

Apparently Germany has no fear of a note from Norway.

With more German brides than usual, and the chautauque season at full blast, there is no lack of romance and culture.

Judge Charles S. Reid.

There has passed in the death of Judge Charles S. Reid, of the Superior court of the Stone Mountain circuit, an able jurist and a valued citizen. The bar admired him for his broad knowledge and his keen sense of justice. The people trusted him for his moral leadership and his righteous enforcement of the law. Judge Reid's record of public service is varied and fruitful. For several terms he represented Campbell county in the Legislature, where he was chairman of the Ways and Means committee and a member of other important committees. Later he represented his district in the State Senate. Following his legislative service, he was elected Solicitor General of the Stone Mountain circuit, and from that office was appointed to the judgeship, to which he was subsequently elected for a term of four years. To him, a public office was indeed a public trust. His constant concern was the community's welfare, and his highest wish the betterment of mankind.

Following closely upon the death of Judge Robert T. Daniel, of Griffin, the death of Judge Reid emphasizes the State's loss in the passing of these distinguished and useful Georgians. Judge Daniel was honored and beloved throughout the Commonwealth and in every part of the country where he had fraternal orders in which he was a leader and a power for justice in its broadest and highest sense.

It must have been the French who threatened to start something in June.

Well, Bryan should feel consoling. The news of his resignation swamped the war news.

Our Need for Ships.

In a recent address at Andalusia, Alabama, Senator Underwood emphasized the nation's need of an adequate merchant marine. Had there been a sufficient number of American trade ships, he said in substance, the war would not have closed the cotton market for so long a period and the South would not have suffered so heavy a business depression.

Competent observers of the country over are impressed more and more deeply with the need for a full fledged merchant fleet. The stranding of the Administration's Shipping bill at the last session of Congress did not settle this issue; it merely deferred and intensified it. If our overseas commerce is to be developed in proportion to its opportunities now and after the war, broader and freer means of transportation must be provided. Especially is this true of Latin-American trade. The most insistent demand voiced at the Pan-American financial conference recently held at Washington was a demand for ample shipping facilities. If private enterprise will not meet this need, and meet it speedily, the Government must do so.

The small boy is one who will not take kindly to the innovation of summer schools.

Berlin hopes against hope that Rumania and Bulgaria incline to the Bryan love of peace.

The old-fashioned man who predicted the end of the war in July must have consulted an almanac.

Council's Commendable Act.

Council deserves cordial commendation for the promptness and unanimity with which it passed the June appropriation sheet, providing for the immediate needs of the city's public schools. The budget carries other appropriations of broad importance, but none so urgent as that intended to protect the community's educational interests. It is earnestly to be hoped that the Board of Aldermen and the Mayor will ratify Council's action without delay in order that the work so justly authorized may go speedily forward.

Under the higher standards adopted a year ago by the Board of Education, an enlargement of Atlanta's school plant has become imperative. The Board decreed that the maximum number of pupils to be seated in one room should be forty; and that is manifestly the largest number consistent with health and discipline and efficient instruction. But with present facilities this wholesome rule cannot be maintained at all in the schools except by holding double sessions, which are undesirable. The city cannot afford to return to the old, unhygienic plan of crowding fifty or sixty or, as was sometimes the case, ninety pupils into one room. The only remedy is to make more room and employ more teachers.

The June appropriation sheet provides for these and other useful improvements in the school plant. The work proposed must begin at once if it is to be finished by the opening of the next term. Hence the importance of Council's prompt action, and the hope that the Aldermen and the Mayor will approve the sheet forthwith.

Germany need never encourage immigration. All the government has to do is to force the Russian prisoners to take out naturalization papers.

The Legislative Reference Bureau.

The legislative reference department of the Georgia State library is now prepared for definite service. The work of this bureau, which was provided for at the 1914 session of the General Assembly, has gone steadily and efficiently forward. Abstracts of important laws passed by other States and nations have been collected, classified and indexed. The proceedings of Constitutional conventions, together with the reports of commissions and other agencies which have studied questions of legislative concern, have been assembled and catalogued. Furthermore, the new department has digested all the official publications of the State of Georgia. Particularly useful in this connection is its compilation of all available literature regarding the Western and Atlantic railroad.

To the members of the Legislature and to State officials, the information thus made easily accessible will be of continual and far-reaching value, and it will be helpful also to hundreds of other interested citizens. A Representative or Senator who is preparing a bill on some matter of broad public policy will be enabled, through the legislative reference department of the State library, to study his subject in the light of national and, oftentimes, international experience. He can learn just how the problem has been dealt with in other States and countries, and thus he will be better prepared to handle the needs of his own State. The same service will be at the call of legislative committees and administrative officials and of students generally. As an aid to well-balanced, broadly intelligent legislation, it will be invaluable.

Anyways, a pessimist never borrows us with funny stories.

Too many people get into an argument who have nothing to say.

The Italian Advance.

Though it is not to be expected that the Italian campaign will continue as steadily as it has begun, the feebleness of the Austrian defense thus far is manifest. King Victor Emmanuel's troops are pressing swiftly forward in Trentino and Gorizia. Italian artillery is shelling Trieste which, if taken, would make an advance to Fiume and Pola comparatively easy. The Austrian retirement may be wholly strategic in purpose, or it may be necessitated by the present by the employment of the empire's main forces in Galicia. However that may be, the Italians are well into the enemy's country and are capturing point after point of military value.

One observer declares that unless this invasion is soon checked, not only Trieste in the east, but also Innsbruck in the Tyrol will fall, and "with their surrender will go glimmering the last Austrian hope of retaining any part of the territory, the cession of which Italy demanded as her price for peace before entering the war."

Germany's plans to meet the Italian movement are yet to be disclosed. That her plans are well formulated and await only the favorable hour for operation is not to be doubted. Meanwhile, however, Italy is decidedly on the offensive.

Man is also the architect of most of his own misfortunes.

The demand for sincerity is far in excess of the supply.

After a man we dislike laughs at one of our jokes somehow we always have a higher opinion of his intelligence.

Psychic Contagion Deadly.

BY M. ADDINGTON BRUCE.
PSYCHIC CONTAGION, based on the universal human instinct to imitate, is one of the most powerful of all factors in determining a man's success or failure in business life.

This is something of which many people are unaware, often to their heavy cost and bitter regret. Many a man who honestly believes that his inability to get on is due wholly to "hard luck," or to the poverty of other people, is really an unwitting victim of the tremendous power of psychic contagion.

Which also means, however, that he is personally deficient in certain important respects. He must correct these shortcomings before he can hope to turn the influence of psychic contagion in his favor.

Briefly defined, psychic contagion is the impulsive reaction of one or more persons in accordance with the suggestions imparted by the words or manner of another person.

In its most extensive and most dangerous form it is seen in the panics, lynchings, and massacres so often chronicled in the daily newspapers. Here it affects large masses of men. But it may, and does, just as surely affect individuals in their dealings with one another.

I know a man who, for the past ten years, has been trying to make his living as a traveling salesman. He has been very unsuccessful. He has never spared himself in his efforts; is bright and resourceful, but he has always failed.

The trouble is that he has been through life, from his earliest boyhood, with a chip on his shoulder. He has been aggressive, brusque, domineering, and, worst of all, "groovy."

His whole attitude has been one of antagonism to others. And, by psychic contagion, his prospective customers have become antagonistic to him.

They feel that he mistrusts them, and instinctively they mistrust him. They feel that the only way to deal with him is to be on their guard. This causes an instinctive reaction of resentment.

He, poor fellow, does not appreciate what is wrong. As an inevitable consequence his grouches are increasing, and so is his acquaintance dislike for him. He sets a vicious circle in motion, which, if he does not break it, will end in his ruin.

Terribly put, it is a law of life that people treat us exactly as we treat them.

If we show, by our actions or by our attitude, that we are not friendly, that we are not sincere, that they will view us in precisely the same way.

Attitudes are as infectious as any disease. The principle of psychic contagion holds universally, and holds infallibly for every man with whom we come into close personal contact.

This is something I say every young man to take to heart when he is starting on the great adventure of life.

Art and Democracy.

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.
WHEN one goes to a museum, one people think of museums, picture galleries and old masters.

It is quite the thing for gentlemen bred with leisure to collect expensive and curious bric-a-brac and, upon the occasion of their death, to leave to the city, to be known as the Smith-Zion collection.

What good is it? Who goes to museums? A very small portion of the people. The effect of the "art gallery" upon the community is something to be wondered at.

If it is not for the fact that it is something to be wondered at, the ministry of the beautiful, let them improve the appearance of the houses of the citizens, the furniture in the parlors and the bedrooms.

Particularly let them make beautiful the habitation of the poor. A hundred thousand-dollar picture from Europe is not as good as a valuable artistically as ten thousand dollars worth of trees would be, or twenty thousand dollars spent on adorning the water front, or five hundred thousand dollars invested in changing slum tenements into comfortable and homelike dwellings.

Art for the exclusive set only, whether that set be millionaires or alleged highbrows, is as bad as anything else that is exclusive. Unless art is made to the common people, it is a waste of money.

In Minnesota, the director of the state art commission, Mr. Lewis F. Clark, has been doing some sensible and real art work. He has been doing some sensible and real art work. He has been doing some sensible and real art work.

The purpose is "to make beautiful the lives of the people and to develop at the same time ambition for art and love of the beautiful in the minds of men with small incomes."

This is the sort of art work that is sincere and effective. It is the sort of art work that is sincere and effective. It is the sort of art work that is sincere and effective.

When we do away with the ugly "shabbie" farm house, the ugly "shabbie" barn, and substitute something picturesque in their place, when we make the village from a collection of huge dry goods packing cases, into a lovely garden, trees and shrubs, and when we get some sort of artistic unity in our city building, then we shall be entitled to be called lovers of beauty.

Other states are following. California, Kentucky, Texas and Indiana are formulating programs similar to that of Minnesota. Germany, Italy, France and Canada have followed the Minnesota plan.

Says Mr. Clark: "The better housing program is supplementary to the other work of the commission. It is the exhibits of industrial art, sculpture, home furnishings, home industries, and school art. It organizes home industries and handicraft classes and puts into the field specialists to teach such work. And it has been successful in finding a market for its product."

Quips and Quiddities

At the end of three weeks of married life a southern dandy returned to the minister who had performed the ceremony and asked for a divorce. After explaining he could not grant divorces, the minister tried to dissuade the visitor from carrying out his intention of getting one.

"You must remember, Sam, that you promised to take me to the water tower and the city hall," said the minister.

"Yes, I know that, boss," rejoined the dandy. "But she's worse than I took her for."—Everybody's.

One of the wealthier members of a fashionable church in Boston approached Rev. pastor with the complaint that he was greatly disturbed by one of her sermons.

"It's positively unbearable," said she. "That man in the pulpit in front of us destroys all my devotional feelings when he attempts to sing. Couldn't you ask him to change his pew?"

The good pastor was sorely perplexed. After a few moments' reflection he said:

"Well, I naturally would feel a little delicate on your account, especially as I would have to give a personal reference to you in my sermon. Here the pastor's face became illuminated with a happy gleam. He asked him to join the choir."—Harper's Magazine.

The schoolmaster wanted to know whether the boys had an understanding of the functions of a compass.

"Supposing," he began, framing his question in the likeliest way to arouse the interest of his hearers, "supposing some one took you up in an aeroplane and, after a long, exciting flight, dropped you into a vast sea of miles from home in a country quite foreign, what place would you call it?"

An eager hand was instantly raised.

"Well, Willie, what do you say?"

"Frisco, sir, the hospital."

"THE OPEN DOOR OF HELL."

BY HERBERT COCKEY.
BAILLEUL, France, May 13—It was not really dark in the long room. Merely gloomy. It was as though the sun had no power to shine in through the open door. The walls were dead. The bare, white walls of the room seemed to be the faces of the dead. The floor was a leaden hue. For a moment we—fresh from the golden road—blinked like owls in the sunlight.

"There is a Norse legend—
 "A man thought he was pursued by a monster.

"His stacks were fired, his barns unroofed, his cattle destroyed, his lands blasted, his first born slain. So he lay in wait for the monster, where it lived in the chasm near his house, and in the darkness of night he saw it.

“Long he wrestled with it, reeling, staggering, falling, and rising again; but at length a flood of strength came to him, and he overthrew it, and stood over it, covering it, conquering it, with its back against his thigh, and his hand at its throat. Then he drew his knife to kill it, and the moon shot through a cloud, opening an alley of light about it; and he saw his face, and lo—

"The face of the monster was his own.

The Shanty

(Copyright, 1915, by W. W. Wenzel.)

AS THE whistle above the mill shrieked its command to quit, Barbara Browne finished filling her last bobbin for the day. With a faint smile of relief directed toward the pale girl who stood nearest her, she turned away to the coatroom. Two minutes later she was out in the rain walking alone toward the house where she lived. The street was full of workers, for it was in a silk mill town, but Barbara spoke to no one, because she knew no one. She hurried along eager to get to shelter before her thin coat and worn shoes were sodden with damp. The cool, clean air was pleasant to breathe after the dry-laden atmosphere of the badly ventilated mill, yet it made the girl cough. She was always coughing of late. "That," she thought, and sighed, remembering that her aunt, whose place she had taken in the mill, had had that same cough and died of it. An arctic chirp in the rain upon a bare bough over her head, and she glanced up at him with a thrill of surprise. "He must have come today," she thought. "Spring is really here."

She shuddered at the thought of another summer spent in the mill with its heat and odor, the chattering, flying machinery all about her, and the spinning bobbins dazing her eyes with their unceasing swiftness which seemed ever to mock "Hurry up! You're too slow"—about. Yes, she was slow, and she was getting slower. But then she was so tired all the time. Sometimes she felt that such rest as Aunt Emily was getting now was better than no rest at all.

She had reached the wretched house where she lived. The narrow road was trodden by the feet of many in the children. Behind it frequent trains rushed and roared. Barbara went up the unpaved stairs to her room. It was pitiable in its bareness and ugliness yet definitely clean, like the soul of the girl who inhabited it. She closed the window and lit the little oil stove upon which she cooked her food. It was then she saw the letter which Mrs. Popper had tossed into the room. Barbara eyed it in astonishment. She never got letters. Her name was badly directed in pencil. It looked as if it had traveled the world over. She opened it and read:

"Dear Niece Barbara: I am writing to tell you that I intend to go west this spring to stay a spell with my

"Why I had no idea you looked married like that. If you want to live in my shanty while I'm gone you can. I'll plant some potatoes and corn in the garden sassa for you, and it won't cost you anything. Why I speak of it because I'm always calculating to come and live with me, but she never got about of that mill somehow. It finished her, but don't let it finish you. Let up while you can. You want to stay at the shanty for one summer anyway. I'll leave a dozen laying hens and you can trade eggs with Mrs. Popper for flour."

"Your uncle."

"HENRY BROOME."

"If this reaches you after I've gone it won't make no difference. Mrs. Popper will look after things anyway, and the key is under the door stone."

Barbara stood staring at the letter with a blur before her eyes. She remembered her uncle—a rough old man, who had come once to see his sister and always had sent her money from time to time as long as she lived. She had heard Aunt Emily speak of the way he lived in a shanty in the woods. She put the letter down and went to the window. A robin flew past with a show in her bill. Somehow the robin decided Barbara. For the robin seemed to be flying in the direction of Uncle Henry's shanty.

On a late May afternoon she came out of the woods into the small clearing in the midst of which the shanty stood, and paused to gaze about her. There was the small gray building, with its two windows and door. A small henhouse was near it, and in the fenced-in enclosure a dozen hens were busy. Behind the shanty rose a ridge covered with trees, below it a pond glistened. Beyond the pond was a large, white farmhouse in the midst of beautiful woods.

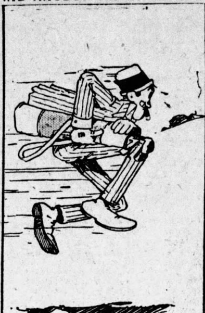

"What a picture!" Barbara said aloud. She hunted up the key and went to the interior of the shanty. It was perfectly clean. There were white curtains behind the window, but not behind the door. A bracket laid by before the narrow bedstead in the corner. On the table was a loaf of bread, a pot of butter, a dozen eggs in a basin and a pitcher of milk topped with a swirl of cream. Behind the stove was a neat pile of kindling.

"What a dear place!" Barbara said. "How happy I am to be here!"

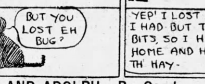

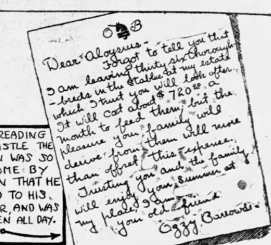

In the twilight, as she sat on her doorstep watching the water and listening to the birds, an old woman emerged from the woods and came over such a little path—a thin old woman, with a brown skin and cautious gray hair. Barbara went to meet her. "I know you," Barbara said. "I've been Henry talk about you till I lost count of you by heart. I thought maybe you'd be laziest-like, so I hurried over soon as I got the chores done. I'll just drop down here on the door step, for I can't stay long. Well, how do you like it?"

"I love it," Barbara said tremulously. "Oh, I didn't know there was such a spot in the whole world as this. I'm a neighbor as you." She laid her white hand on Barbara's shoulder. "You're a brown one. Maybe you'll believe how much I appreciate your delicious bread and butter when I tell you that tonight I've really enjoyed my food for the first time this spring. I'm so glad your work doesn't seem to me."

She looked at Barbara with her keenly.

TODAY'S HOUSEHOLD AFFAIRS
Fermented Milks

Much has been said and written recently on the subject of fermented milks—buttermilk, sour milk, zook, Bulgarian milk, koumiss, matzoon, etc. It is contended by many that these milks are more nutritious than whole milk and far more healthful. In fact, many persons ascribe to them marvelous properties, even going so far as to assert that they will prolong life if used constantly.

The first of these assertions is absurd. From the standpoint of actual nourishment buttermilk is certainly inferior to whole milk, as all the butterfat has been removed.

The second contention is more substantial. While the fermented milks do not represent a short cut to eternal youth and health, as their enthusiasts claim, under certain circumstances they are more easy of digestion than the whole milk.

Dissolve one-sixth of a yeast cake in a little warm milk and add one tablespoon and a half of sugar. Add this to one quart of fresh, lake water milk and pour this combination into bottles. The bottles should be thoroughly cleaned with boiling water and easily corked. Place the filled and tightly-corked bottle for twelve hours where the temperature will not drop below 70 degrees. An even temperature is desirable. Then set the bottles in the ice box for another twelve hours, and the soured milk will be ready to drink. This makes a highly charged drink, but be sure that the bottles are securely corked, and they should be opened with caution.

The Girl's Job

"When It Is Too Late to Make Your Start"

BY JESSIE ROBERTS

EVERY now and then I get a letter from some young girl in her twenties revealing the fact that she did not get a training "before it was too late" in some definite occupation.

Yet there is one woman who managed to surmount the lack of early training at a considerably later date than the one that appears to discourage my correspondents. Her name is Mrs. Thelma Robin, and she was sixty-eight before she ever did a stroke of work outside her own home.

Think of that, you waiting girls! She had always had a taste for decorating, and she became editor of the shopping guide in a well known magazine. A job that necessitated her going into all sorts of out-of-the-way shops and special stores and second-hand places for the purpose of telling about fine old tapestries, furniture, new comets, late designs in wall papers, etc. She made a success of her department and received an excellent salary.

But was she content there? No. After several years she decided that she preferred to work for herself. And she thought out a new scheme. She decided to decorate houses by correspondence in her own office. She conducted a voluminous correspondence, advising her clients what to do with a certain room, how to improve this or that, what hangings go with a certain type of furniture, the proper color combinations and every other detail belonging to the interior decorator's art. She wrote drop-blue-prints and exact measurements of the apartment houses and seeks to discover all she can of the temperaments, tastes, family belongings and training of the client whose orders she is filling. She also sells antique through the mail, sending photographs and descriptions. She has proved her trustworthiness and excellence, and at seventy-eight has her hands full of work and her head full of ideas, and is as energetic and interested as a woman half her years.

Old Granny Fox Shows Her True Self

BY THORNTON W. BURROWS

(Copyright, 1915, by J. W. Lloyd.)

True character, as you should know, When things go wrong is bound to show.

IF it is easy enough to be pleasant and nice when everything seems to be just as you want it, but when things go wrong and all your plans are upset it is quite another matter. It is then that true character shows itself. You can never know people for what they really are until you see them in trouble.

"This is no business of yours," she snarled

Sammy's voice and came back to the tree where the three little Possums were, grinding her teeth in the most horrid way and glaring up at Sammy Jay as if she would kill him with her fierce looks if she only could.

"This is no business of yours, Sammy Jay!" she snarled, and there was nothing pleasant or smooth in her voice then. "You mind your own affairs and leave those of other people alone. You're a good for nothing meddler and ought to have your neck wrung."

Then why don't you wring it?" chuckled Sammy in the most provoking way.

If ever Granny Fox wished she had wings it was then. As it was there wasn't a thing she could do and she knew it. She fairly choked with anger as she glared up at Sammy.

"Keep cool, Granny. Keep cool," continued Sammy. "Don't give way to temper. It isn't dignified. Besides it won't do you a bit of good. Temper never got anybody anywhere except into trouble."

To have heard Sammy you would have thought that he never lost his temper, when as a matter of fact he is forever losing his temper. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself to try to mislead such poor innocent little things as these baby possums," continued Sammy. "If you had been trying to fool some one who was wise enough the ways of the Great World to be on guard, perhaps you would have kept still, but to try to fool such helpless little innocents, he, Granny, he."

Bumpy, Grumpy and Frumpy pricked up their ears. Granny had called them very smart, and they felt that they were. To have Sammy Jay call them helpless innocents hurt their pride. It made them angry, not at Granny Fox but at Sammy. They had felt quite able to take care of themselves and rather big and important. Granny Fox had had them feel more so. Now, here was a meddlesome bird calling them helpless and innocent, as much as to say that they didn't know much and needed some one to look out for them! When they should have been very grateful to Sammy, they were provoked with him. They were almost tempted to go right down and show him that they were not afraid, but they decided that it would be better to wait until Granny had recovered her temper. They might do something or say something that would turn her anger on them. They would wait.

So they kept still while Granny Fox called Sammy Jay every bad thing she could think of and Sammy laughed and chuckled as if it were all a great joke. And the longer they kept still the better chance they had to see old Granny Fox show her true self. Somehow she didn't look as if she ever could have been pleasant and harmless looking. She looked now just what old Mrs. Possum and Uncle Billy had told them she was—dread and cruel.

MADAME SCHUMANN-HEINK'S ADVICE TO JUNE BRIDES

"Mothers, Let Your Daughters Develop the Home Instinct," Plea of Famous Opera Singer.

BY MADAME SCHUMANN-HEINK.

LET us begin at the beginning. The young mother bends over the cradle where sleeps her little daughter and dreams dreams of the time when love shall come to her—but she seldom dreams beyond the placing of the wedding ring.

"And then they married and lived happily ever after!" is an idea that she learned from her fairy book days and so at that point her dreams end.

I wonder does she realize that she can commence all most immediately to make that dream come true for her?

First, she can put back into her arms the doll that has gone out of fashion. Yes, I know he have kewpie dolls and paper dolls and Paris dolls and character dolls—every kind of doll except the sensible baby or little girl doll—the doll that can be undressed, its clothes made, mended and laundered that our grandmothers loved.

Teddy bears and poodle dogs are but makeshifts, but every young mother should see that her little daughter has a family of dolls to care for. She should be taught to make their clothes with painstaking stitches.

I myself got my first love of children from my dolls, and my great hope was for a real baby that would take the place of my china, wax and rag ones.

A little girl who is brought to play with dolls is learning by the Montessori method the profound of motherhood. Too much have dolls been neglected by the modern mother, too insidious has been the cry "bring your girls to play outdoors games with their brothers."

The great advantage of a splendid playground, but mothers let your little daughters play at keeping house out there with shell and stones to mark the rooms and leaves and mud to fashion into a house.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

By Mary Lee

To Mrs. S. E. M.—A recipe for Scotch scones—The following recipe is taken from an English recipe book, and is probably the one you refer to. One pound of flour, one teaspoon cream of tartar, one teaspoon carbonate of soda, sugar milk.

Split the flour, soda, and cream of tartar together. Make a hole in the sifted mixture, pour in enough sour milk or buttermilk to make an elastic dough, knead it thoroughly and quickly. Roll out about an inch thick, cut into rounds, and bake them in a hot oven. They should be baked on a griddle, like pancakes. The tea scones are made as follows:

One-half pound of flour, two ounces of butter, one ounce of Paisley flour, one teaspoon of sugar, one egg, milk.

This also is an English recipe, and if the Paisley flour cannot be obtained, a teaspoon of baking powder sifted into an ounce of fine white flour will serve as a substitute.

Split the flour into a bowl; rub in the butter, add the sugar, a pinch of salt, the beaten egg and a little milk. Turn out the mixture on a lightly floured board, roll out rather thin and cut into small rounds. Arrange these on a buttered pie plate, brush over the tops with a little beaten egg, and bake quickly. Split, and butter before serving.

THE YOUNG PHILOSOPHER

BY EDNA K. WOOLEY.

THIS morning I had a refreshing talk with a young philosopher, who lives in our neighborhood. He's somewhere around ten years of age—maybe a year or two older—a pale and spindle-legged youngster whose big spectacles give him an owl's look.

When we met he was carrying a violin case almost as tall as himself.

"No, it ain't awful heavy," he assured me. "I guess if I ever get anywhere where I got to stand up under some things myself. You gotta do things if you're gonna to be anything."

"My teacher says I'm making a pretty fairly good violin player because I ain't afraid to work. I stick to it. He says that's where I get ahead of the folks that think they're geniuses and so don't have to practice. I know a boy lots bigger'n me who won't never amount to nothing because he's too nervous or stick to things. He took violin lessons, too, and his pa got him a fine violin, and he played fine, but he wouldn't stick and because I play better'n he does now he chases me when he sees me."

"He had a garden last year, too, and he said he was going to make more money'n all the rest of the boys out of his garden. But heah! He let it all grow up in weeds till they was as high as me—almost, and then he said it was too much trouble to pull 'em out, and he didn't get any good out of his garden at all. Say—you got a garden?"

"I admitted I had a small one concerning which I entertained large hopes."

"Say—a garden's great, ain't it?" he eagerly queried. "I only had one with my sister last year—just as wide as this sidewalk, and from here about to that telephone pole there. But say! We did just what the teacher at the school said to do, and we made the soil right and planted and kept on weeding and cultivating, and we had the biggest radishes and the best beets and beans you ever saw! We even had some to sell and my father said we should have a savings account in the bank and he took us to the bank and showed us how. Say, do you want to see my book?"

"I'll bring it to your house and show it to you."

"This year all the boys and girls in school have gardens. We got an expert that came and showed us lots of things."

I'm going in for corn this year. I got a bigger garden all by myself. My sister says she likes flowers better, and she's going to take 'em to sell. "You know, it ain't luck you got to depend on raising things. It's doing things right and sticking to it and keeping right on all the time. I ain't as big and strong as some of the boys, but I guess if I do a little every day and not try to do such a lot all at one time I can do just as much as anybody and maybe more. You don't have to be terrible big and strong to do a whole lot."

"Do you intend to be a farmer or a musician?" I asked.

"I ain't hardly old enough to say," he gravely informed me, "but pa says he hopes I'll be an independent American citizen that ain't afraid to think for myself and work for my family, and I guess I can stick to that. He says I won't ever get to the porchouse on that road. Well, this is where my music teacher lives, in the only one that comes to him so early in the morning. The others don't like to get up so early, but if you get up early you get your day's work done before dark. Good-by."

At your house, perhaps, there is some important member of the family who should be enjoying Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes—with good milk poured in the side of the dish—not on top—just enough to float the crispy flakes and bring out their delicate flavor. Spare the sugar.

Oh, you'll all be eating them—and repeating oftener than with any other breakfast food—these golden flakes with the ever-alluring fresh-from-the oven taste!

And remember please that you don't know corn flakes unless you know Kellogg's—the original Toasted Corn Flakes—with the pride of the originator to keep the delicate process complete.

Even Baby can tell the difference!

* Then too there is the WAXTITE package that keeps the fresh, good flavor in—and all other flavors out.

Crackers Drop 2nd to Chicks, Sid Smith

Keeley Holds Crackers and Schlei Beats 'Em

Locals Get but Five Hits Off Chick Hurler — Rumber's Double and Jenkins' Single Prevents Shut-Out—Schlei's Triple Score Winning Runs

MEMPHIS, June 9.—The efficient pitching of Bert Keeley, and one very timely long distance walk by Admiral George Schlei, sealed defeat for the Crackers in the second game of their series with the Chicks here Tuesday afternoon. The score stood 3 to 1 in favor of the home club.

With the exception of Bill Rumber, Keeley had the Crackers on the string practically all the way. Had not the big righthander had his slight prodding, trained, the Crackers would have drawn a blank for the full nine innings. Twice did Rumber hit for two bases, and once produced a smash, which sent Rumber over with the only run scored by the Crackers. This was in the fifth. In every other round, Keeley sent the visitors back empty handed. Manning produced a clean, hard center fielder's eighth, and Lee beat out an infield roller in the sixth. Except for these and Rumber's first double in the seventh, the Crackers failed to coax a hit from Keeley's delivery.

On the other hand, Rumber pitched for the Crackers was hitting a good deal. The Chicks were unable to collect their hits at times when they were in the run getting. In the fifth, the very first inning, after Allison had fanned, McDermott singled and Stewart walked. Baldwin, who tried to double, George Schlei singled a long triple to the outfield, scoring the run.

The Chicks scored their third and last in the seventh. Rumber, who had fanned on two previous trips to the plate, produced a clean drive to center, and Duncanson scored. The Crackers got a man to third in the sixth, and for a time it appeared that they might tie things up. With one run, Lee beat out an infield hit. Williams flied to Allison, who tried to double. Lee off first. His throw was low, and Mitchell for the third out.

A battle between outfields is promised for today, when Allen meets Merrett.

Summary: Two-base hit, Rumber's double and Jenkins' single prevented shut-out—Schlei's triple scored winning runs.

When the play starts in the South Atlantic tourney in Augusta next Monday there will be a number of Atlanta stars on hand to compete for the honors. This tournament has always been a popular one with Atlanta players and has always been well attended by them. The titles have been captured during the last few years by the following players: Ed Carter has two legs on the single cup and will again defend his title against the winner of the South Atlantic tourney. Last year Orr and Carter won the double after one of the most exciting matches ever played on the Augusta course, with the Waring brothers from South Carolina.

As has been the custom in the past, the Atlanta players will play the tournament. The tennis tourney has featured the tournament since the tour was first established several years ago. This year about fifteen Atlanta players plan to make the trip. Frank Reynolds, dean of the Atlanta contingent, will lead the team. Among them are William McKenzie, Marion Britton, Harry Ashe and Frank Owens. Jack Orr will also take a car full to Augusta. It is a possibility that the Atlanta players will play the tour. The cars will leave five points at noon.

The Atlanta players have another excellent team to make clean sweep of the tour in this tournament. Besides Ed Carter who will meet the winner of the tournament striving for the chance to play him. Eaton Mansfield, Jack Orr and Frank Carter, team of 1914, as good

BY CAMPBELL DICE

It was an inspired bard who wrote:

"As this old world goes round and round,"

"Some go up—and some go down."

Only, to judge from the printed records up to date, more have gone down than have gone up. In fact, we can hardly recall a past campaign which presented so much slumping and slumping in high quarters; a past campaign in which the aristocracy of ballroom has suffered such heavy losses.

Only a partial peek at the casualty list is necessary to show the morbid and morose trend of affairs. As follows:

1. Rudolph, James and Tyler—the Triple Sensation of 1914—only of twenty-three starts have failed to win half their games, with only eleven victories against twelve defeats. Last year their mark was over 700.

2. Christy Mathewson has won only one game out of six starts, for an average below .200. His fifteen-year average is above .550.

3. Ty Cobb, rated next to Cobb, a national .350 hitter, is struggling down around .282.

4. Clyde Milan, holder of the base-stealing record in the American league, and rated one of the fleetest of them all, has stolen six bases, against twenty-six for Cobb and nineteen for Major.

5. Walter Johnson has been hit harder and oftener than in any previous campaign.

6. Charles Albert Bender, the renowned Chippewa Chief, has been unable to wrench off an average of one game out of three with the Feds.

7. Haas Wagner, the Prime Minister of Swat and the Grand Vizier of Bingle, is padding the ozone below .210.

There is a large amount of priceless baseball fire listed in this prize deficit, which isn't very far from being a record drop of casualties.

TY AND THE TOP MARK.

Will this be Ty Cobb's greatest year? Not unless he is a superhuman, reinforced to the thirty-third degree.

Here is his record year, established in 1911, which he is using for a peacemaker.

Games A. B. Runs Hits Stolen Bases Bat. Av.

145 121 147 248 83 420

Cobb, so far, in forty-eight games, a trifle less than a third of the scheduled spin, has piled up fiftythree runs, sixty-nine hits and thirty stolen bases. If he should maintain his clip for the rest of the season he would have 162 runs, 215 hits and 92 steals. He is beyond 1911, his great year, and is now on his way to breaking his record in making. He has a good chance to break his old mark in runs and stolen bases, but only a faint chance to break his record of base stealing. Very few of his runs will likely stand for a number of dry, feverish summers.

TS needs 179 hits in the game to equalize this old mark, and would require a .440 gleam in the candle power of the Bating eye for the rest of the season. There must be a limit somewhere to what even the highly miraculous Mr. Cobb can accomplish. Or isn't there?

THE FURY RECORD.

"Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned!"

Well, how about some tennis art, all set.

Who with an easy shot before his gill,

Steps up and slams the pill into the net?

No wonder a lot of us can't play good golf. Walter Travis, in his recent match for the title against Johnny Anderson, had two puts of less than two feet. He looked up on both, a record for him, and missed both. Yet a lot of us look up on puts of eight feet, mangle about of 140 yards or full drives and wonder what the ballyhoo happens.

If a look-up make Travis miss a two-foot putt, what will it do to the average golfer on a 140-yard shot? The answer is absolutely unprintable.

WHERE SOME ELSE WAS WORSE.

This is a true story. Absolutely. There is a certain golf course, located near an asphalt road, where the Chicks and Crackers have been playing a club match. One of the players, who had been playing badly for some days, was hit by a ball.

Near a certain tee on the inward journey is a small lake. As the two ladies stood upon the tee here a frenzied nut dashed between the ladies and the lake and death to me. It had even been performed the two ladies went on with their game. But the nut, who had been playing badly for some days, was hit by a ball.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S COTTON LETTER
NEW ORLEANS, June 9.—The sudden resignation of the secretary of state, the definite reason given for it, and the bollcotton commoattached to it by the press, was enough to destroy confidence for the moment. A first weather map, showing fair weather over the Baltic, no rain, except in the Wilmington district, and a forecast of a complete change in the program, and there was a good deal of selling at the start, which a narrow market could not take without a rather wide concession. The trade was around 16 points decline. There was very sharp selling, but no expected apprehension is kept alive in consequence. Liverpool evidently expected a good deal from overnight political developments in this country, but futures there dropped as much as 10 points. Very sharp selling, but no expected apprehension is kept alive in consequence. 8,000 bales. Cables report outlook threatened. The map indicates fair and cooler weather.

over the central and eastern belt, increasing cloudiness in the western states, becoming unsettled and showery towards Friday.

The market started off with the first rural crop yield was announced. It is argued that developments at Washington will remove the disturbing element of uncertainty in external politics and that more serious political developments during the past four weeks have had a passing effect on the market. The recent recovery of the market and inclination of the bull operations by leading interests was based entirely on technical conditions which, by the public selling, became only more pronounced.

Trade settled around 9.52 for October and November as the trade is waiting for an in the political situation. The note to Berlin is expected to be on its way.

Spots are steady but inactive today.

WEEKLY WEATHER REPORT

WASHINGTON, June 9.—In the central and eastern portions of the cotton belt, except the far western portion, the weather was favorable and the crop was well cultivated and made satisfactory growth. In the Carolinas cool, wet weather and deficient sunshine made conditions less favorable and the crop is showing the lack of cultivation. In the southern portion of Texas the weather mainly caused floods and considerable crop damage, but over the remainder of the state the weather was favorable and fields were well cultivated and the crop made good growth.

in Oklahoma cotton. In the Arkansas fields are grass. In the southern truck districts all crops made good growth. Mean temperatures ranged from normal, slightly above normal over the central portion of the State, to below normal in the west. There was a deficiency, the greatest deficiency being over North Carolina. Weekly mean temperatures ranged from 64 to 78 degrees of the eastern, from 74 to 82 over the central and from 70 to 78 over the western portion of the State. The lowest mean temperature growing season. The lowest mean temperature, 64 degrees, occurred Asheville, N. C., and the highest, 82 degrees occurred at New Orleans, and at Corpus Christi. No rain occurred over a large part

Your Money

NEBRASKA' ON FAITH OF.
By JOHN M. OSKISON.

Mr. Gurney, of the First National Bank of Fremont, Neb., was talking to a gathering of fellow bankers: "My bretheren, the text which I have chosen is 'found in the twenty-third chapter and the thirty-seventh verse of the Book of Hard Knocks, and it said: 'And they were called upon to pay up.' 'Verily, I say unto you, liquidation is a noun, always proper, and, unfortunately, ately, only tolerably common. Nevertheless the best thing about a note is not its rate of interest, nor yet the promise it pays. What think ye, then, it is? I promise unto you it is the knowledge that I need your livin'. Get that, you boobies, the back pew!"

No wonder his friends dubbed him Gurney "the Billy Sunday of Nebraska." It was plain, country financial gospel he preached—the sort upon which national banking was founded.

What, Mr. Gurney wondered, would the founder of modern banking had said if when a borrower's note came due only a check for the interest had come or the borrower had appeared to ask for an extension until the price of he got better? Or suppose the borrower on receiving a polite request to pay had swaggered in to shout: "What the hell's eatin' you; ain't my note good?"

If Mr. Gurney wants an answer to his hypothetical questions, he has only to consult the financial history of many of our railroads and big industries. He will find that bankers

Indeed, new notes are made: one is of bonds is paid off by putting out another—just a little bigger than the first.

If the country is to be brought back to a general appreciation of the sort of thrift which says that you ought to pay as you go, to borrow only when and of making a profit on borrowed money and to pay a note when it is due, Mr. Gurner's work is put out for him!

On the whole, a farm mortgage investment is about as satisfactory as any in this country, and this is so because as a rule farmers do pay off their obligations when due.
